About The Pennsylvania Community Foundation Association

The Pennsylvania Community Foundation Association (PACFA) mission is to help Pennsylvania community foundations connect, learn and where appropriate act collectively. Led by community foundation expert, Mike Batchelor, and his board of 10 Pennsylvania community foundation leaders, PACFA's capacity is expanding and reaching new heights in 2025.

Community foundations have been widely recognized as the fastest growing form of philanthropy in the United States. Across the Commonwealth, our members are working with an array of professional advisors to help their clients support causes they care about.

Operated by respected boards and staff, our 37 members are analyzing community needs, assembling coalitions and making grants to enhance the quality of life for all in their communities. Increasingly, they are also connecting, learning, and acting collectively on legislative and public policy issues.

About the PACFA Annual Conference

Pennsylvania's community foundations have gathered annually since 2021. Each year, attendance and enthusiasm grows. Attendees include c-suite executives and others with oversight of over $4.6 billion in assets controlled by PACFA membership. Last year, the conference drew 130 attendees from nearly every community foundation member organization, partnering organizations, sponsors, and speakers.

The conference provides in-person educational opportunities around a variety of topics including governance, community leadership, asset management, and marketing and communications; with ample opportunities to interface with conference sponsors.
